2017 Academic Year (Heisei 29)
Tokyo Metropolitan University
Graduate School of Human Health Sciences
Research Student Program: Application Guidelines

1. About the Program

The Research Student Program enables students to engage in research on a specialized topic or theme under the guidance of Tokyo Metropolitan University professors. The Program is not a preparatory course for enrollment into the graduate school.

2. Application requirements

Applicants must satisfy at least one of the following requirements:

- (1) The applicant must hold (or will hold by March 31, 2017) the equivalent of a bachelor's degree as per Article 83 and 104 of the Japanese School Education Act.
- (2) The applicant must have completed (or will have completed by March 31, 2017) 16 years of education at a school in a foreign country.
- (3) The applicant must have shown academic ability equal to or greater than the requirements (1) or (2) at Tokyo Metropolitan University.

* Applicants to whom requirement (2) or (3) applies must first pass application qualification screening before applying. After contacting the University's Academic Affairs Division in advance, send all application documentation to the Academic Affairs Division in one set by the following date. (Documentation must arrive by this date.)

If applying to begin in the Spring Semester:

Documentation must arrive by January 27, 2017

- For a 6-month period of study from April to September

OR

- For a 1-year period of study from April to March

If applying to begin in the Fall Semester:

Documentation must arrive by May 26, 2017

- For a 6-month period of study from October to March

The application qualification screening process requires approximately one month. However, those who have already passed application qualification screening for a Graduate School of Human Health Sciences entrance examination in the past are not required to complete the process again. When applying, please attach a copy of your “certificate of application qualification” received after completion of screening.

3. Research period

The duration of a student’s research period is six months or one year in the same academic year (from April 1, 2017 to March 31, 2018). It is possible to change the length of one’s research period at a later date. However, if the student is not a Japanese citizen, a “student” visa permits a maximum research period of two years, including any enrollment as research student at other universities. (Please confirm with the Immigration Bureau.)

4. Screening method

The research student screening process is conducted twice a year (the April start and the October start) according to the following procedure:

- (1) Pre-screening review of submitted application documentation.
- (2) Supervisor interview (not required for those who applied via the graduate school entrance examination) and screening by a faculty committee on the basis of (1), to the greatest extent possible without interfering with regular students’ education and research.

5. Pre-screening review of submitted application documentation

(1) Application period

For Spring Semester starts, documentation must be submitted between February 6, 2017 and February 17, 2017.

For Fall Semester starts, documentation must be submitted between June 5, 2017 and June 16, 2017.

* Application documentation must be received by mail (Japan Post’s acceptance-recorded mail).

If sending an application from a foreign country, please ensure that application documents are received by the last day of the application period.
